BUNGA BUCK RUNS RACE OF HIS LIFE

Wins Thanksgiving Handicap After a Ding-dong Battle With Slippery Elm.

TIPPITY-WITCHET, THIRD

Eight Thousand Turf Devotees Brave Downpour to See Bowie's Holiday Races.

Special Despatch to The New York Herald. Baltimors, Md., Nov. 24.—Bunga Buck's feetive prize was worth $3,950. He earned it. After looking the pacemaker, Slippery Elm, in the eye for a mile he drew out in the final stages to the mile and three-sixteenths Thanksgiving Handicap, which served the piece de resistance of Bowie's tur!

Some of the $,000 who assembled will be able to describe how Bunga Buck ran the race of his life. Others must admit that they stood, rain soaked or hidden in congested packs, under shelter without seeking to avoid the constant downyour which had set in during the night to reduce the track to a sea of slop. It was a good humored crowd, despite the crush and weather.

Bunga Buck, Ponce up, was the heavily played second choice in a field of ten. starter Miller wasted little time. They left the barrier evenly. Slippery Elm, always at his best in the slop, outran Junba Buck to the first turn by a neck. Tippity Witchet, the favorite, led Gnome and the others.

The long striding Gnome had been shuffled back to ninth position rounding the turn. The leaders fought with Tippity Witchet clear in third position, four lengths back. Entering the stretch, Ponce sent Bunga Buck alongside the pacemaker by hard urging. They ran skride for stride for a sixteenth. Slippery Elm wavered under Morris's lass. Bunga Buck's white nose went into the lead and drew out to his length and a half final advantage. Slippery Elm saved the place and $1.000 purse money by six lengths from Tippity Witchet. Gnome was six lengths further away and leading the others. The time was 2:04. Bunga Buck was worthy of the wild cheers that greeted him. Sandy Beal, a local pride and atoutly supported choice, was never a serious contender. Ponce sent Bunga Buck alongside the Ponce was the riding star of the day.

His other brackets were secored with Titanium when that plater registered over ten other cheap ones in the sixth event. The boy showed something of his best form when he spreadeagled the quartet that opposed him through the six and a half furlongs of the Promenade Purse, the secondary feature. He was away on top, though it required smart piloting to keep him there through the early stages, because Orlole, the Commander Ross entry, had speed, but brickson, his rider, was not capable of showing it to advantage. Finally he dropped back, with possible equine discourage, while Dry Moon, the Stoneham candidate, under Miller's urging, got up to take the place. Orlole saved third in a drive over Sagamore and Crank, the two others.

Hephaistos became the first triple winner of the meeting when he led his field home in the Bennings Purse, over the seven furlongs. First Caretaker and then Plucky led the other juveniles through the early running until McAtegave Hephaistoe his head entering the stretch and the decision was made. The son of Vulcan hustled home with a length and a half advantage, one of the two winning favorites of the day.
